WARWICK — Agnieszka "Aggie" Pindral, a European-trained physical therapist, has both a masters and doctorate degree in physical therapy.

On Wednesday, Sept. 23, Town of Warwick Supervisor Michael Sweeton, Mayor Michael Newhard and members of the Warwick Valley Chamber of Commerce joined Pindral, her family and Clinical Specialist Ellen Warren for the official grand opening of Warwick Physical Therapy.

Located in the Mitchel Corners Shopping Plaza, 25 Elm St., Warwick Physical Therapy provides physical, occupational and speech therapy in a comfortable state-of-the-art facility.

"We provide an outstanding patient experience; from ease of scheduling to hands-on care," said Pindral. "Each of our therapists has over 20 years of experience. And our patients aren't just handed off to assistants after their first evaluative visit. Warwick Physical Therapy is the only practice in the area with private treatment rooms. Since our soft opening a few months ago, our exceptional service has been reflected by having more than half of our new patients referred to us by previous patients."

Warwick Physical Therapy was first launched by Pindral, Warren and Victor Januario.

Pindral specializes in hands-on manual therapy and advanced joint and spinal mobilizations. She also specializes in pediatric therapy and sports injuries.

Warren, a clinical specialist in chronic pain management, has been an occupational therapist for more than 26 years.

She has worked in a variety of rehabilitation and mental health contexts and was affiliated with the Pain Management Program at the Hospital for Joint Diseases Orthopedic Institute, New York University Medical Center, for 12 years. While there she developed both in-patient and out-patient mind-body programs. Warren's unique programs have been featured in newspapers, magazines, and New York One and Good Morning America.

"We also speak Polish, Portuguese, Spanish, and Russian," said Pindral. "And we have ample parking."
